

The City of Nagoya will carry out vaccinations in order to reduce as much as possible the number of fatal and critical COVID-19 cases, and prevent the spread of COVID-19.

About the Novel Coronavirus Vaccination

(1) Cost of vaccination: Free

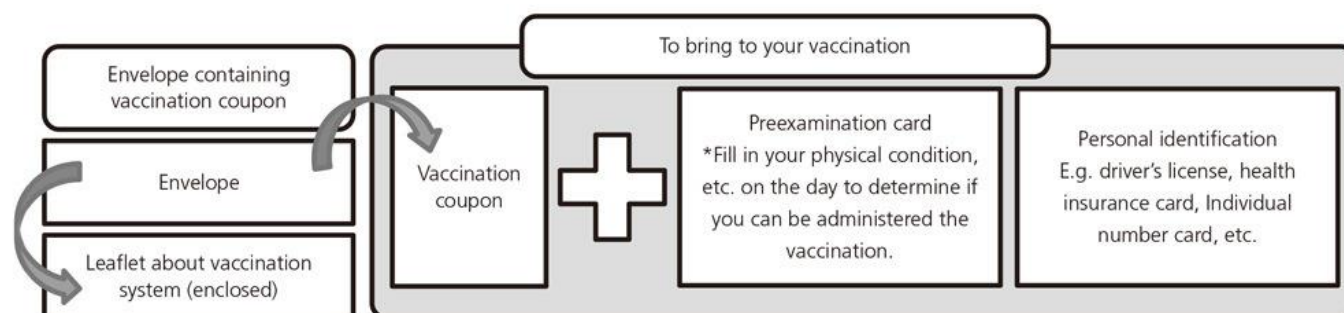

(2) Eligibility: Those registered as residents of Nagoya City at the time the vaccination is to be administered, and who wish to receive the vaccination

*Exceptions may be made for persons currently in long-term hospitalization, confinement to a facility, or other unavoidable circumstances to receive the vaccination in another municipality.

(3) What to bring: Vaccination coupon received by post from the City of Nagoya and personal identification

*The vaccination coupon will be addressed to the eligible individual. As vaccinations will be carried out in order of priority, coupons are scheduled to be sent to persons aged 65 and over from late March, and to others from mid-April.

*Vaccinations will be administered after information has been provided thoroughly, and only with the consent of the individual to be vaccinated.

*From April onwards a preexamination card will be enclosed with the vaccination coupon.

Order in which the Novel Coronavirus Vaccine will be administered

In view of the potential for segments of the community to be seriously affected by COVID-19, and the need to secure the medical care provision system, medical workers will be the first to be administered the vaccine, followed by persons aged 65 and over, and then persons (other than the elderly) with pre-existing conditions, aged care facility workers, etc. Following this, the vaccine will be administered in turn to other members of the community as supplies of the vaccine permit.

The vaccination will be administered at group vaccination venues and designated medical facilities. Group vaccination venues will be announced in each ward's edition of Koho Nagoya (広報なごや) from April onwards. You will need to make a reservation in advance to receive the vaccination.
