Supported by the Nagoya Board of Education

As part of measures to prevent the spread of COVID-19 infection, participants are requested to observe the following.

- 1) Please wash your hands and gargle. Please wear a mask in the classroom.
- 2) Please do not participate if, during the past two weeks, you have seen a doctor or have been taking medicine for fever or other cold- or flu-like symptoms, or you have travelled overseas (or come into contact with someone who has returned from overseas).
- 3) Before coming to class, please check your temperature at home. If you have a fever (a temperature of 37.5°C or higher, or your temperature is 1°C higher than usual), or other symptoms such as difficulty breathing, a sore throat, a cough, fatigue, etc., please do not participate.
- 4) Please refrain from conversing loudly, eating and drinking (drinking to keep yourself hydrated is welcome) in the classroom and shared indoor spaces, and other behavior that increases the risk of infection.
- 5) When entering the classroom, please allow staff to take your temperature, and provide your contact details. If a case of infection occurs, this information will be used to trace contacts.
- 6) If a case of infection occurs, please cooperate with health center efforts to trace contacts. If you are identified as a high-risk contact, please follow instructions issued by the health center.

A request to the teacher

As an organization managing part of the City of Nagoya’s international relations activities, the Nagoya International Center holds Japanese lessons for children whose mother tongue is not Japanese. The class aims to provide the Japanese language skills necessary for a smooth school and life. During the application process we will be evaluating each student’s Japanese ability and subject knowledge. In order to do this we would like the opinion and advice of each student’s current teacher. If possible, we would like the teacher to obtain permission from the student’s guardian and to write an opinion and a view about the student’s Japanese ability (listening, speaking, reading, and writing) and subject knowledge in the box below. Please note that submitted information will not be used for any other purpose.
